

Go about your business as usual

With Flex Hub, ship your cargo normally and store it close to key markets to deliver when the time is right.

Storage easily becomes critical as overall demand across countries are decreasing. Businesses are being affected by lockdowns due to COVID-19 and closures of retail chains and high-street stores. In response to the current market uncertainties, we are offering a new solution, Flex Hub, to manage the inflow of goods and slow down your supply chain.

The solution enables your business to stay competitive by ensuring you have a sufficient stock of goods when demand picks up. You can position your goods closer to key markets, get the flexibility to change the final destination and make faster deliveries to your customers at the right time.

How Flex Hub works:

Make your booking with Maersk to a destination as planned.

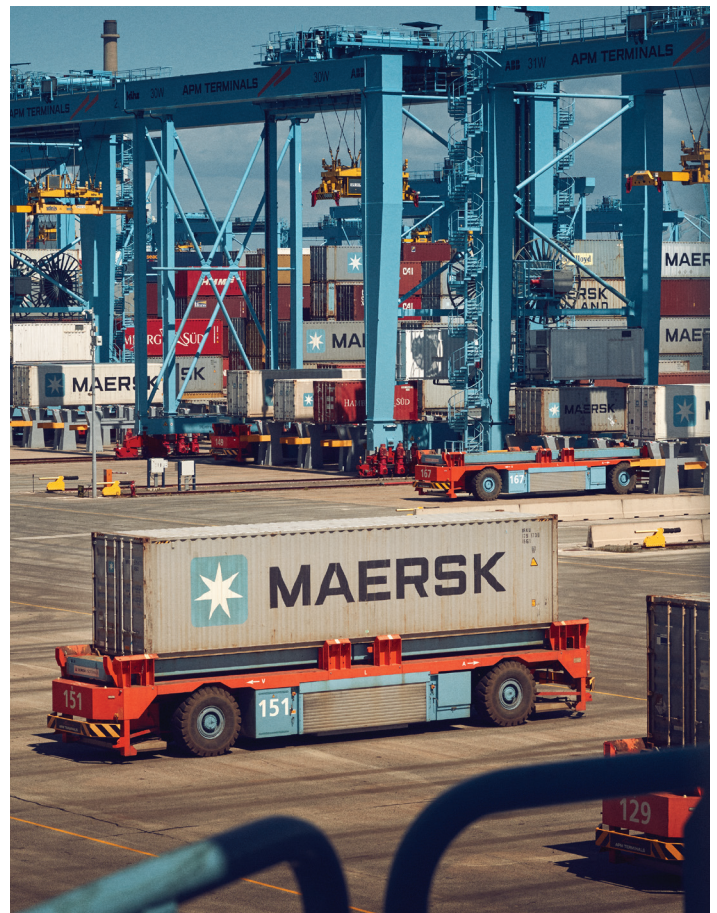

Inform us at time of booking that your cargo needs Flex Hub.

Receive real-time updates of your cargo from the time your containers leave for the transshipment hub.

Your Maersk representative helps manage the holding of containers across our multiple hubs.

After the cargo reaches your hub port of choice, we hold it on your behalf until you decide its final destination and when you want it delivered.

All potential locations for the final destination must be a part of the contract.
